Economic and Political Change in Bolivia: Myths and Realities

A talk by:

Diego Zavaleta Reyles

Centre for Research on Inequality, Human Security and Ethnicity (CRISE)

After 10 months in power, what has been the political and economic impact on Bolivia of Evo Morales and his government? Will the Asamblea Constituyente make a difference? Are the government's proposals really so novel? And how much is the government's programme driven by ethnicity?

Diego Zavaleta is a doctoral scholar at the Centre for Research on Inequality, Human Security and Ethnicity at the University of Oxford. Before coming to Oxford he was the Secretary for the National Dialogue in Bolivia.
