Why Andeans Love Coca

with Professor Sir Ghilleen Prance and Dr John Hemming
Joint Event with the Anglo-Peruvian Society

Professor Sir Ghilleen Prance, former Director of Kew Gardens and Britain's foremost botanist on South America, will describe the remarkable coca plant, whose many beneficial qualities make it a staple of Andean Indians, but whose leaf can be transformed into the powerful cocaine. Historian Dr John Hemming, one of the world's experts on the Incas and Peruvian archaeology, will tell how coca was an important element among the Incas and their predecessors.
