Railways of Bolivia: A historical perspective.

Christopher Walker will take us on a historical journey on the railways of Bolivia - from the inaugural line to serve the Huanchaca mines through the next one hundred years including the international connections to La Paz, attempts to cross the Andes, industrial-owned railways and finally the oriental lines. The illustrations will range from early images of the late nineteenth century up to the 1980s, with a significant colour element from the 1950s-60s.
